

LOWELL L. PEFLEY - IN MEMORIAM

Lowell L. Pefley was born in 1902 in Wabash County, Indiana, and later came to Whitley County, where he has resided until his death. In the passing of Judge Pefley, the City of Columbia City and Whitley County has lost a valuable citizen, an able lawyer, and a congenial and respected friend.

Judge Pefley received his education at Ball State and Columbia University. He taught school in Whitley County, served as Prosecuting Attorney, and was honored by becoming Judge of the Whitley Circuit Court, in which capacity he served with integrity, fairness, and distinction until his death.

Judge Pefley is survived by his widow, Marguerite, and his stepson, Wayne Johnston.

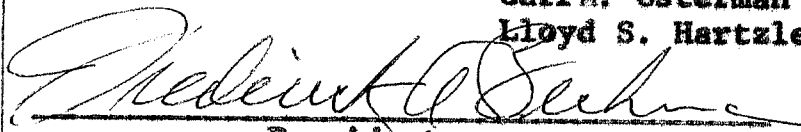

Judge Pefley was an able and conscientious lawyer who brought distinction to the judiciary and his profession by the thoroughness, determination, and manner in which he presided over his court.

Judge Pefley liked people and was noted for his fellowship, friendliness, and compassion for others. He had a keen interest in the welfare of his community, its progress and advancement, and in civic affairs. He was never too busy to devote his time to some worthy cause. He was always jovial and had a smile for everyone.

In Judge Pefley's passing, the Whitley and Allen County Bars have lost a respected leader and a member who possessed a deep sense of justice and an understanding of the law, and his community has lost a respected citizen who contributed much to its growth and development.
